Meet our Family Law Section

In today's society, family relationships are more varied and complex than ever.

Though we share every family's goal of building a safe, supportive environment for their loved ones, we also know conflicts occur that threaten household peace. When you need wise counsel to settle family disputes and other issues, it is important to find an attorney who takes the time to understand your unique family situation and guide you accordingly.

At Hayes, Berry, White & Vanzant, LLP, we are Texas family law attorneys committed to providing exceptional representation in matters involving divorce, child custody arrangements and other domestic matters.

With offices in Denton, Flower Mound, Gainesville and Celina, our firm has the ability and dedication to help you find a lasting solution.

Why you need to hire a Board Certified Lawyer

Board Certified lawyers earn the right to publicly represent themselves as a specialist in a select area of law.

How to Deal with Borderline Personality Disorder

They might be quite reasonable at work and with friends, then revert to dysfunctional, extreme behaviors at home.

When is the best time to get a divorce?

There may be no right answer. There are, however, many considerations to be aware of when trying to determine when you should file for divorce.
